FROM THE EDITOR

The Digest

The ROCA Digest forms an important communication medium with Old Collegians. It is appreciated by all and provides valuable information on what is happening with both the College, Collegians and staff old and new.

As Editor, or rather as assistant editor, I have found compiling the Digest an imposing task. As always one does not realise the effort past people have put into a job until one is forced to do it themselves.

Apologies to all for getting the last Digest out so late. I hadn't realised this issue was to get out so early due to the ROCA A.G.M. and dinner R.S.V.P.'s requirements. I will certainly attempt to keep to my deadlines from here on in.

Advertising

It has been encouraging to see interest in advertising in the Digest. As you will see from the rates included again in this digest they are very cheap. By opening the Digest to Advertisers we are simply trying to reduce ROCA's largest single yearly cost, printing and posting the Digest. Personally I see advertisers as Old Collegians helping to support ROCA and keeping fellow Collegians up to date with what you are doing now. I don't believe one should view it as "a cost which can't be recouped", or that you'll "never get any business from it anyway". In the final analysis it is simply a $30 to $50 donation to something you feel you would like to support and for that donation you receive a bit of advertising space.

Roseworthy - Adelaide University .....	3
Roseworthy Old Collegians .....	4
Lost Members .....	6
50 Year Reunion Group .....	6

On the same note I was very happy last digest to have an old college mate offer and pay the advertising fee but not take any space to advertise. These small donations help the Digest continue as a reasonably professional publication.

The Digest currently costs approximately $1,300 at least to print and post each issue. Currently interest earned on ROCA funds does not meet these and our other commitments.

ROCA

I have been on the ROCA committee for only a few months now but am increasingly impressed by the business aims and objectives of all the corporate bodies involved. Further to this ROCA and other related Roseworthy entities appear to be achieving many of the objectives they have set as corporate boards.

The Adelaide Uni Faculty of Agriculture headed by Professor Harold Woolhouse has very vibrant and vital key people assisting with direction. Each discipline within the faculty has a mission statement and they have detailed specific guides on how they are to achieve that mission statement.

The Roseworthy College, being a residential college, has an old collegian, Allan Alcock, as principal. The College has a vital role to play in both the ongoing success of the Faculty and also has a detailed mission statement.

Old Collegians will appreciate the caring manner in which the Faculty of Agriculture, and Professor Harold Woolhouse in particular deals with any matter which has a significance to the "Old Roseworthy" as a viable residential college.

You the Old Collegians should also be proud of a ROCA committee which works in areas of significance not only to Old Collegians but also in areas relevant to the current Faculty of Agriculture and to Australian Agriculture in general.

ROCA shares with Professor Woolhouse a vision that the current Faculty of Agriculture can be, if it isn't already, the most vital, dynamic contributor to Australian Agricultural education and you as an old collegian can help by supporting and sharing in this vision.

Roseworthy College - Directions

At our most recent ROCA meeting a number of Adelaide University staff and related individuals presented their views on the Agricultural Science faculty's past performance and future directions.

For your interest I include here a summary of presentations from Allan Alcock, Principal of Roseworthy College and Professor Harold Woolhouse, Dean of Faculty, Adelaide University. Following these comments, I thought it may interest you to repeat a short summary of ROCA prepared some time ago by old collegians Peter Dunn and Bardy McFarlane.

Roseworthy College

4 July 1993

Mr Brad Butler

14-16 Coral Street

VICTOR HARBOR SA 5211

Dear Brad,

The main points I sought to make in my presentation were as follows:

1. While Roseworthy College is owned by The University of Adelaide it is an incorporated company and legally distinct.
2. The composition of the Board provides a useful insight into the College:
  - a. An independent Convenor.
  - b. Close ties with the Faculty
    - Dean ex officio - in person, not a nominee
    - Oscar Jones - Faculty Secretary
  - c. Three Old Collegians
    - Bardy as ROCA representative
    - self by virtue of my position
    - even though there were already two Old Collegians the Board favoured appointing a third.
  - d. Three current residents
    - residential student elected by the residents
    - self
    - Gill Hollamby
    - longest standing resident.

3. In my opinion, it is a credit to the University the way they have soundly established the College. I think it is important to acknowledge this to balance the negativity that tends to be associated with the merger.

This point is well illustrated by:

- the philosophy of the relationship between the two entities;
  - the substantial funding provided by the University for both new facilities and for the rehabilitation of existing facilities that were in varying states of dereliction.
4. The future of Roseworthy College and the Faculty of A&NRS are closely linked. If the Faculty prospers the future of Roseworthy Campus and Roseworthy College is assured. On the other hand, the Faculty depends on Roseworthy College to accommodate half of its Roseworthy students and this makes the prosperity of Roseworthy College fundamentally important to the Faculty.
  5. While the University has certainly fostered the establishment of Roseworthy College, the University has also made it clear that the College is expected to be self-sustaining and is not to rely on continuing direct or indirect financial support.
  6. Roseworthy College is currently finding it difficult to retain the numbers necessary to keep it viable. Despite this, we have managed to produce a cash surplus and an operating profit in the first year of independent operation.
  7. Because Roseworthy College accommodates such a high proportion of Roseworthy students (this is in contrast with the other Adelaide University residential colleges), keeping fees affordable is considered a high priority so as not to preclude students from studying at Roseworthy. Roseworthy College fees have not been increased in real terms for several years, despite being low relative to other University residential colleges.
  8. Roseworthy College residents do not currently have the opportunity to take advantage of any scholarships and bursaries. This contrasts with other well established Adelaide University residential colleges as illustrated by the list offered at St Ann's.

Thank-you for asking for this information. Your interest is very welcome.

Yours sincerely,

Allan Alcock

The University of Adelaide
& Roseworthy College
Relationship Philosophy

1. The University is committed to fostering the establishment of Roseworthy College and is determined to give it every opportunity to succeed.
2. The University will not allow Roseworthy College to be impeded, or have its viability threatened by a legacy of historic encumbrances (sub-standard buildings and substantial debt).
3. The University has given Roseworthy College exclusive possession of all residential facilities on the Roseworthy Campus. Roseworthy College is now the sole provider of on-campus residential accommodation.
4. Roseworthy College is to be financially independent and not reliant upon financial support (direct or indirect) from the University.

Dean of Faculty Meeting

An Information Meeting of Dean of the Faculty, Associate Deans, Heads of Departments and Professors with Members of ROCA and Alumni Agricultural Science Chapter at a dinner given by the Dean and held at Urrbrae House on 20 June 1993.

The Heads of Departments gave poster displays and spoke briefly of the philosophy and essentials of their Departmental programs.

The Dean spoke of the integrated nature of the Faculty of Agricultural and Natural Resource Sciences embracing the Waite and Roseworthy Campuses and of the way in which the Departments and degrees offered had been structured to embrace the agricultural, horticultural and oenological aspects of the food and fibre system from the basic genetics, biochemistry, physiology and breeding systems through to crop and pasture agronomy, related areas of environmental science and rangeland management and their bearing on sustainable systems of production, and the organisation of agricultural business and marketing.

The Dean went on to propose a new approach to alumni affairs in which the Faculty would provide office space, secretarial assistance and a subsidy for a joint effort by the two alumni sections. He said he would like to see the alumni become more closely involved with the Faculty and the work of its Departments and develop a system for keeping contact with all the graduates from the Faculty. He would also like to see them centrally involved in the organisation of an annual graduation dinner for the new graduands of the Faculty at which they should be involved in the prize givings; these developments should not prejudice the more traditional gatherings of alumni from particular years. Dr. Mayo represented the Alumni Association and much useful information was exchanged in the course of the evening

ROSEWORTHY OLD COLLEGIANS ASSOCIATION

Roseworthy Old Collegians Association (R.O.C.A.) maintains an important link between former students and the Roseworthy Campus.

It was established in 1896, shortly after the Agricultural College was founded. Currently there are in excess of 1400 members of the Association.

For many students, the period spent at Roseworthy makes up the most important years of their life.

The education in agriculture, natural resources and oenology received at Roseworthy has set thousands of graduates on a career path that often leads to a place in the community as leaders in their field of endeavour.

With the merger of Adelaide University with Roseworthy Agricultural College in 1991, ROCA became an affiliated chapter of the University Alumni. This has opened up membership of ROCA to a wider cross-section of people.

The contribution made by Roseworthy graduates to South Australian agriculture over the past century has been enormous.

Names like Eastick, Seppelt, Gramp and Dawkins are all associated with RAC, as well as the success of South Australia.

The Old Collegians Association not only has a commitment to keep the College history alive, but it also maintains an important role as a body that fights for the future of Roseworthy Campus and Roseworthy College (the Halls of residence on Campus).

Members of the Old Collegians are concerned to ensure that Roseworthy is allowed to continue to provide the high quality broad based rural education for which it has become widely renowned.

ROCA is an effective platform upon which to pursue this concern.

The Old Collegians actively lobby politicians, bureaucrats and academics on issues affecting the Campus and the College.

Recently this has included submissions on issues such as the establishment of the residential College and the restructuring of tertiary institutions.

ROCA also provides the campus and the faculty with financial support.

Scholarships and awards have been funded by ROCA and Old Collegians and they have given strong financial support to numerous Roseworthy Campus projects, like the swimming pool.

Members receive four "ROCA Digests" per year to keep you in touch with what other Old Collegians are doing and what's happening on Campus.

Each September, the "social highlight" of the ROCA membership is the annual dinner and reunion.

Regional reunions are also held in the South East, Riverland, Eyre Peninsula and at a number of interstate locations.

Life membership is available so why not join the thousands of other graduates as members of the Old Collegians Association. Qualification for membership is one year at Roseworthy Campus, so most current students are eligible to join immediately. If you'd like to enjoy the benefits of ROCA, contact the President or Secretary now!

VALE

Graham Murray Douglas Wishart

It is with much sadness we report that Graham passed away on June 26th 1993 after a long illness.

Graham attended Roseworthy from 1960 to 1962.

After a year with the S.A. Dept. of Ag. working with soils he moved to Robby's Aerial Services, thus beginning a career of close contact with farmer needs and the fertiliser industry.

In 1967 Graham joined Adelaide and Wallaroo Fertilisers, initially being located at Naracoorte for one year as District Officer returning to Adelaide as Agronomist, then Chief Agronomist.

His experience led him to the position of National Sales Manager of the renamed Top Australia Ltd., and apart from his work in Australia he was responsible for creating new markets and programs overseas in India, Thailand, N.Z., America and France.

Graham has made a large contribution to the fertiliser industry, farming and agronomy in Australia over 26 years.

Our deepest sympathy go to his wife Jill and his children Ben, Lachlan and Rebecca.

Co-ordinator for the group is Robert Baker.
(936 Marion Road, Sturt S.A. 5047 - phone: 08 298 5502).

About our Advertisers

Once again we have been pleased to receive adverts for this digest edition. As previously mentioned this helps reduce the overall cost of getting the digest out to you, our members.

The advertisers in this edition include Greg & Debbie West of Game Dynamics. Greg is an 80's Roseworthy graduate, an active promoter of alternative livestock enterprises, and a talented public speaker on this same subject. Greg is currently on the ROCA Committee.

Brad Butler is a 1983 Roseworthy Diploma Graduate and works principally as a financial planner but dabbling in Australian tourism industry.

10 YEAR REUNION GROUP

Graduates who spent their last year in RAC in 1982 and graduated in 1983 are welcome to join the 10 Year Reunion Group at next year's R.O.C.A. Reunion.

The ten year reunion group is normally a feature of the Annual Dinner, and with the help of the graduates of a decade ago, we hope to make this year's reunion just as successful.

People who started their course with the graduating students, are also welcome to join the group.
