ANNUAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1971

To His Excellency Sir Mark Laurence Elwin Oliphant, K.B.E., D.Sc., F.R.S., F.A.A., Governor in and over the State of South Australia.

The Council of the University of Adelaide has the honour to present to Your Excellency the following report for the year 1971:

1. INTRODUCTION

The University of Adelaide Act, 1971, made a fundamental change in the constitution of the Council of the University. From its inception in 1877 the Senate had elected to the Council twenty members who need not be, though most were, members of the Senate. In 1911 Parliament assumed responsibility for electing five of its members to the Council; and subsequently minor amendments to the University Act provided for the Chancellor and the Vice-Chancellor to be ex officio members if they were not already elected members. That constitution of a governing body of a University was unique.

The 1971 Act provided root-and-branch changes in the constitution of the Council and in the theory and philosophy behind it. One aspect of the old constitution only remained unchanged: the appointment of five members of Parliament. The Chancellor and the Vice-Chancellor became members ex officio during their tenure of their respective offices. The undergraduate body was granted the power to elect four members. The Senate was replaced as an electoral body by a Convocation of Electors comprising all graduates of the University, all persons in the full-time employment of the University, and all postgraduate students (whether graduates of the University or not). Convocation was empowered to elect to the Council eight members of the academic staff, one postgraduate student, one member of the non-academic staff, and twelve persons not in the employment of the University. Transition from the old to the new constitution was spread over two years, and will be completed in November 1972.

Other major changes in the Act provided for the Council to have wider powers of investment than formerly, for recognition of the Union, and for the omission of special provisions relating to the Waite Agricultural Research Institute which, from its inception in 1924, had been an integral part of the University but had needed special provision for its proper establishment and development.

The impact of inflation hit the University hard. The provision made in 1969 for buildings to be raised in 1971 fell far short of actual cost; both major and minor approved works had to be set aside in order to enable the remaining programme to proceed. Postponement of major buildings for the Administration and Psychology enabled an expanded version of Stage II of the Library Complex to be completed. The Complex, three floors of which are underground, provides for the urgently-needed expansion of the library, for the Departments of Architecture, Adult Education and Computing Science, for the Health Service, the Computing Centre and the Staff Club, and a group of tutorial rooms for common use. The Union, providing more than half the cost from its own resources, effected reconstruction and extension of the Union buildings costing about $1 million.

Steeply rising costs, especially in non-academic salaries and wages, forced the University to adopt economies which involve unfortunate consequences both current and prospective. In many areas the University was unable to recruit the staff required to teach well the increased numbers of students in the advanced years of their courses; indeed, while additions were essential in some cases, posts that became vacant by resignation or retirement had to be kept vacant for indefinite periods, sometimes more than a year. Economies with implications for the future were made in the provisions for building and grounds maintenance and repairs, teaching equipment, and the purchase of books and journals for the library.

Despite the financial difficulties a record number of students completed their courses for degrees. 1,472 degrees were conferred and 215 diplomas granted between July 1971 and June 1972, representing effectively the students who completed their courses during 1971.

2. THE COUNCIL AND SENATE

In accordance with the provisions of The University Act of 1971 ten of the elected members of the Council were to retire in November. Mr. J. A. Dunning had died during the year, and the other nine members who retired were: Professor G. M. Badger (who became an ex officio member of the Council as Vice-Chancellor), Mr. P. Balan (who resigned as he was overseas), Dr. W. F. Hambly and Professor J. G. Cornell (who wished to retire from the Council then), Mr. A. H. Campbell, Dr. E. H. Medlin and Mr. M. K. Smith (the three remaining members of the Council who had been longest in office) and Miss V. T. Baddams and Mr. S. J. Jacobs. Mr. Campbell did not offer himself for re-election.

In October the undergraduates elected Messrs. F. C. Graham and D. M. Johnson, and in November the Convocation of Electors elected the following twelve members in the categories shown:

Four members of the Academic Staff: Professor J. H. Carver, Professor D. O. Jordan, Dr. G. M. E. Mayo and Dr. E. H. Medlin.

One person in the full-time employment of the University other than a member of the Academic Staff: Dr. R. C. Heddle.

One postgraduate student: Mrs. S. M. Williams.

Six persons not engaged in the employment of the University: Miss V. T. Baddams, Mr. W. J. Bentley, Mr. W. R. Crocker, Mr. S. J. Jacobs, Mr. P. A. V. Roff and Mr. M. K. Smith.

At its meeting in November the Senate re-elected Mr. W. M. Rogers as its Warden and Mr. H. E. Wesley Smith as its Clerk. Four of the five vacancies on the Standing Committee of the Senate were filled by the re-election of Miss L. M. Angel, Dr. J. R. Casley-Smith, Mr. O. G. Jones and Mr. D. F. Wicks.

The Senate appointed a Select Committee comprising the Warden, the Vice-Chancellor, Mr. A. P. Moore, Dr. H. J. Rodda and Mr. W. H. Schneider to consider the functions of the Senate and its Standing Committee and of the general body of graduates.

The Senate also decided that in future any elections for the positions of Warden and Clerk and for vacancies on the Standing Committee would be wholly by postal voting.

3. STAFF DISTINCTIONS

In the Queen's Birthday Honours the Hon. Justice R. F. Mitchell became a Commander of the Order of the British Empire and Mr. Richard Meale a Member.

Professor J. A. Colmer was elected a Fellow of the Australian Academy of the Humanities; Professor M. F. Glaessner was elected a member of the Academy of Natural Sciences Leopoldina, Halle, German Democratic Republic; Professor T. G. Wilson was appointed Commonwealth Fellow at St. John's College, Cambridge for 1972; and Dr. J. R. Casley-Smith was awarded, jointly with another research worker, the 1971 R. T. Hall Prize of the Cardiac Society of Australia and New Zealand.

4. DEATHS

The Council reports with deep regret the deaths of Mr. P. J. Britton, Lecturer in Music from 1967, in January and of Mr. J. A. Dunning, a member of the Council from 1960, in June; and it records its appreciation of the service given by Mr. Dunning on numerous University committees.

5. RETIREMENTS

Dr. W. F. Hambly, a member of the Council from 1954, Deputy Chancellor from 1968, and at the time Dean of the Faculty of Arts, retired in November from all offices on account of ill-health; and the following members of staff retired at the end of the year: Miss. L. M. Angel, Senior Demonstrator in Zoology, who had been a member of the University staff for forty years; Mr. J. F. Conroy after forty-six years' service to the University, the last 36 of them as Maintenance Superintendent; Miss C. M. Eardley, Senior Lecturer in Botany, who had been a member of the University staff since 1933; and Professor M. F. Glaessner, who had been a member of staff since 1950 and had been appointed to a personal Chair in 1964. Dr. R. Dr. I. N. Capon was appointed Director of the Computing Centre, Mr. O. E. Slight Deputy Librarian, and Mr. K. A. Conlon Producer-Manager for the Educational Radio Station.

8. TEACHING AND STUDENT PREFERENCES

Changes in student preferences for fields of study perceptible in 1970 became apparent in 1971. In the Faculty of Arts fewer students pursued their studies in language and literature, while enrolments in Education and Politics markedly increased, and a new course in Classical Studies, which did not require a knowledge of Latin or Greek, proved popular. The swing from the physical to the biological sciences continued, and Biochemistry is the most rapidly growing science department from a student-enrolment aspect. Extensive discussion took place in the Faculties on the need to provide for studies in anthropology and in the human and environmental sciences, and on the nature of a modern curriculum in legal studies. The transition to the new "topic" curriculum in the medical course proceeded as smoothly as could be expected. The unitisation of third-year courses in science subjects, which affords the student a wider choice of what he may study at advanced level, was consolidated; and a wider range of combinations of studies in Agricultural Science was made available.

Such a climate of review and change involves one aspect not readily apparent to anyone outside the University. It is the great amount of time that must be spent in discussion, both formal and informal, on what changes in existing courses should be made, what new courses should be introduced, and—most intractably—how to finance them.

9. RESEARCH

The Research Executive Committee in 1971 had $671,000 available to it for the general support of research by staff members and the training of postgraduate students. The number of postgraduate scholars receiving stipends from the University Research Grant was 140 (including 38 scholars whose tenure of awards was six months or less); the corresponding numbers were 132 and 29 in 1970. The stipend paid to postgraduate students was $1,750, an increase of $100 on the 1970 stipend; and the normal tenure of awards remained the same as in previous years.

Members of staff received grants totalling $410,723 from the Australian Research Grants Committee for 1971. This amount represented 9.7 per cent. of the total awarded to universities and research institutes in Australia. Grants to members of staff were distributed as follows:

10 projects in the Humanities and Social Sciences	$30,996
9 projects in the Physical Sciences	75,398
23 projects in the Chemical Sciences	70,255
35 projects in the Biological Sciences	156,620
4 projects in the Earth Sciences	11,129
8 projects in the Engineering and Applied Sciences	66,325

In addition, grants from sources other than the A.R.G.C. totalling a little more than $1m. for the support of research projects were received during the year.

10. GIFTS AND BEQUESTS

The Council acknowledges with gratitude the following bequests received during the year:

$20,000 from the late Miss Eva Waite for the purposes of the Waite Agricultural Research Institute; $6,000 from the estate of Mrs. D. M. Salotti to establish "The Daisy Burmeister Salotti Pianoforte Scholarships"; $112,581 from the estate of Mrs. H. M. Lloyd for research into or the treatment of cancer; $45,183 from the estate of Miss V. M. Ballinger and $1,500 from the estate of J. E. Dunston for the Anti-Cancer Foundation; $4,831 from the estate of Mrs. L. E. Johnson for cancer research.

An anonymous benefactor gave $5,000 to support the work of the Medical School. Mr. W. R. Crocker gave to the University a valuable collection of material relating to the work of the Australian Department of External Affairs; the collection will be particularly valuable to members of the staff and students when it becomes fully available in the future. The late Mrs. Margaret Morris bequeathed forty old and rare volumes to the Library. Another gift of an unusual nature was a number of books on the art of the film from the Adelaide University Film Society; the Library greatly appreciates gifts from University societies.

11. STATUTES AND REGULATIONS

A new Statute Chapter LXXXV, Of Election of Members of the Council, was made, and Chapter VIII, Of Terms, was repealed and a new Chapter substituted. Clause 9 of Chapter IX, Of Matriculation, Clauses 3, 9 and 12 of Chapter X, Of the Faculties, and Clauses 8 and 13 of Chapter XXV, Miscellaneous, were amended.

The regulations governing the degrees of Doctor of Letters and Master of Dental Surgery were repealed and new regulations substituted in each case; and amendments were made to other regulations as follows:

Regulations 13, 14 and 16 of the Degree of Bachelor of Dental Surgery;

Regulations 3 and 13 of the Degree of Bachelor of Economics;

Regulations 2, subsection (a), of the Degree of Bachelor of Laws;

Regulation 11 of the Degree of Bachelor of Medicine and Bachelor of Surgery;

Regulations 3, 4 and 7 of the Degree of Bachelor of Music; and Regulation 8 repealed.

Regulation 9 of the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

12. STATISTICS

Numbers of Students: The total number of students was 8,737, an increase of 173 on the enrolment of the previous year. Higher Degree enrolments continued to rise attaining a record level of 935.

The tendency towards a greater proportion of full-time enrolments was continued in 1971 when these enrolments represented 64.2 per cent of the total, or, excluding the Elder Conservatorium of Music 65.8 per cent.

The composition of the student body is shown in the following table:

	Males	Females	Total	%
Full-time	4,060	1,551	5,611	64.2
Other	2,116	803	2,919	33.4

Total Students	6,271	2,466	8,737	100

Distribution into Courses:

Each student is counted once only—in the category appropriate to his principal course. The figures in brackets refer to the number of females included in the totals.

COMMEMORATION ADDRESSES, 1972

There were four ceremonies for the conferring of degrees: on 26th April at 11.00 a.m. and 3.00 p.m. and on 3rd May at 11.00 a.m. and 3.00 p.m.

In opening the first ceremony the Chairman of the Education Committee, Professor L. W. Cox, said:

Deputy Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, Members of the Council and Senate of the University of Adelaide, Graduands, Ladies and Gentlemen.

I have pleasure in welcoming you to this the first of our commemoration ceremonies in 1972, and first of all I wish to congratulate those of you who will shortly be admitted to a degree. You are justly proud of your work and we and your families are here to honour you.

How many of us had friends at school who hated every minute of it, and stuck it out just as short a time as possible, perhaps just to school leaving age, or longer till they passed some necessary examination that would open a new door to them in life.

There should be none of you today who hated University, because you should have come of your own free will, to a course suited to your nature, and have worked according to your inclinations. No doubt there are some who, when last year you passed the last examination, threw away your books and cried "No more studies." But I hope that the majority of you found your appetites whetted, and look forward to continuing to learn new things in your chosen discipline. For education is a continuing process, and does not cease because formal tuition ends with the issue of a degree.

The "in thing" in education in the seventies is likely to be continuing education, a field which is expanding rapidly. The definition of continuing education is important. It is not postgraduate training and research leading to higher degrees and diplomas. Continuing education provides the means for stimulating reviving interest, and bringing up to date the person who is now settled in his life's work. Perhaps I can describe what this means by giving an example from my own subject. You are all aware of the explosion in medical knowledge as a result of scientific research in the last two decades. New facts of physiology are discovered, old diseases have their causes recognised at last, and new medications are formulated to cure illness or relieve symptoms. In the last ten years the mass of new factual data is as much as the whole of previous medical knowledge, and the number of new pharmaceuticals available for prescription almost exceeds all those previously used.

1958 was a memorable year in gynaecology, because the first successful use of gonadotrophic hormones to stimulate ovulation and thus cure infertility was announced, and in that same year clinical trials of oral contraceptives were being offered to selected workers throughout the world. Fourteen years later these latter substances are among those preparations most commonly prescribed, but doctors who graduated before 1958 did not know of them and could not have been instructed in their use.

Formal courses for continuing education as a means of updating professional and technical expertise have now become widespread, and many agencies have an important role in providing them. In this university there are the Department of Adult Education, the Postgraduate Committee in Medicine, and the Postgraduate Committee in Dentistry all of which have extensive programmes. In addition many professional bodies arrange their own programmes; these range from as little as an annual lecture to formal courses of instruction.

In medicine we have had long experience of the refresher course. Many doctors attend these regularly, choosing a course in a different subject each year. So highly are these courses thought of, that I have met many doctors and especially those from the country, several times in the dozen years I have been in Adelaide.

In this State, continuing education programmes will expand rapidly and they will reach a wider audience. The opening of the University Radio Station VL5UV which begins transmissions very shortly, provides a long awaited opportunity. The station has been established by a gift of $100,000 from an anonymous graduate of the University, to whom we are most grateful. While its initial role in continuing education is clear, there is no doubt that methods of helping undergraduate studies will also evolve shortly.

Every one of us is a little lazy, and to enrol for a refresher course taken after the day's work or at weekends is a burden, and we are often too tired to bother. But if we can sit at home in comfort and receive the lecture, hear the debate, or even join in a tutorial, with a telephone talk back, we are much more likely to take part. The Department of Adult Education is responsible for Radio 5UV and has its first series of transmissions planned, mainly in those areas which are already involved.

Naturally, continuing education can be interpreted more widely than just an extension of undergraduate work, or refresher and vocational courses. General courses which give any person a wider perspective on life are equally important. Questions of the politics, economy and geography of the neighbouring nations round the Pacific Ocean concern everyone of us. Questions of the ecology of the fauna and flora in our own country should be discussed freely by us all. Psychology, the arts, social science: all of these concern us, and honestly we would be interested in all of them if we had time and it took no trouble. It remains to be seen how liberal our education for life has been when we have to decide whether to forgo a favourite television sequence in favour of a transmission from Radio 5UV which challenges us to think and take up study again.

But in spite of the need for updating there is always a gap. Like the boys who hated school, some students find university courses a drudgery, they were glad to finish, and they are unwilling to maintain their reading after graduation. One must admit that the fault must lie with their teachers in part. Once the spirit of enquiry has been inculcated, it will not be lost. Once learning becomes exciting and not boring education is a process that will automatically continue throughout life.

Forgive me for returning once again to medicine as an example. In Australia once the licence to practise is obtained, it is valid for life unless withdrawn for criminal or other offences. The spate of new drugs, new methods of diagnosis, all these may be ignored by the man who shuts his books at graduation. How can one prevent stagnation? It has been suggested that continuing education is so important that a re-testing and re-licensing should be done every five or ten years to ensure competence. In some parts of the U.S.A. membership of medical societies is conditional upon completing a minimum continuation programme each year, but so far, I think, revision of licences has not yet begun.

How would you graduates feel if your bachelor's degree were to be cancelled unless you took some test of up to dateness of new advances in your own branch five years from now, and every five years thereafter?

Graduates of today, I congratulate you on passing another stage of the continuing education in life. I hope you have enjoyed this stage at University, and step confidently into the longer one, of your chosen vocation. At this time you will appreciate most the couplet from Horace that was the motto of my old school:

Doctrina sed vim promovet insitam
Rectique cultus pectora roborant;

But teaching brings out the innate power and right training toughens the spirit.

At the ceremony in the afternoon of 26th April, the Deputy Chancellor, The Honourable Justice Roma F. Mitchell, addressed the congregation as follows:

Today is a first for many of the graduands present at this commemoration ceremony, in that it is the first occasion upon which each has been admitted to a degree conferred by this University. Today marks a first for me also in that it is the first day upon which I have acted on behalf of the University in admitting graduands to degrees. In speaking to you, first and foremost I wish to pay tribute to my eminent predecessor in office, the Rev. Dr. W. F. Hambly, M.A., whose sudden death on the 15th April shocked and saddened very many people in the community. Since Dr. Hambly accepted the position of Master of Lincoln College in 1951, a position which he held until his death, he has served this University in many capacities and always with devotion and distinction. He was a member of the Council of the University from 1954 until ill health obliged him to retire from that position in November last. During the final three years of his membership of the Council he had occupied the position of Deputy Chancellor. This is not the occasion upon which to discuss in detail the service given by Dr. Hambly to this University and to the outside community. It is however apposite for me to say that he is deeply mourned by all those who come into contact with him, and that we shall remember not only his fine intellectual qualities and his capacity for hard and fruitful work but also the humanity and understanding which characterised his approach to all problems. Every member of the University deeply sympathises with his widow and sons in their sad loss.

Just over 99 years ago, at a time when this University was in its planning stage, Benjamin Disraeli, speaking in the House of Commons, said:

“A university should be a place of light, liberty and of learning.” Notwithstanding that some critics of university communities tend to suggest (wrongly in my view) that universities have become places of darkness and degeneracy, I would hope that the standards of light, liberty, and learning have been and will continue to be maintained in this University—learning in the sense of pursuit of the truth, light to comprehend the truth when it is revealed, and liberty to proclaim the truth as it is seen by the individual. “The inquiry of truth,” said Francis Bacon, “which is the love-making or wooing of it, the knowledge of truth, which is the presence of it, and the belief of truth, which is the enjoying of it, is the sovereign good of human nature.” No one doubts that scientific truths are not static, in that what appears today to be a scientific truth may tomorrow be shown to be error. It is interesting to me to remember, as an undergraduate of this University in days before World War II, with what scepticism we undergraduates, particularly in the non-science faculties, treated the attempts by the late Professor Sir Kerr Grant to split the atom. To us the end then seemed unattainable. But not only scientific truths are subject to revision. The student of today examines with microscopic care what were regarded as philosophical truths by past generations. It is in this way that you graduands have been encouraged to take advantage of that liberty which should be part of university life. Your studies, both in your own disciplines and outside them, and your association with the university community, have doubtless caused you to form opinions on topics of international, national and local significance. You have, I hope, not feared to express those opinions wherever it has been appropriate so to do. You have also, I trust, not held to them blindly where further light cast by additional study or subsequent experience has caused you to doubt their validity, for intellectual honesty, allied with a capacity for hard work and a solicitude for people, is probably the greatest attribute which a university can inculcate in its undergraduates.

Now you have come to a parting of the ways for many of you. Some have attained higher degrees, and some will remain to seek higher degrees, with the ambition in either case of embarking upon an academic life. To you I would say that I hope that in whatever university or tertiary institution you may find yourself in the future, you will always regard yourself as part of the whole community and not as living in an ivory tower of learning. Whatever may have been the position in times past, the community today has a very direct financial and personal interest in all institutions of tertiary education, including the universities. Not only is it entitled to acquire, for a proper consideration, the fruits of honest research, and to have its tertiary students educated with the assistance of academics of high quality, but it is also entitled, as it seems to me, to the consideration which a good neighbour may expect of his neighbour. Its views should receive respect. By that I do not mean that the academic should not use all proper means to convert the unconverted from what he regards as fallacy, but he should, I think, bear in mind first that truth may not be absolute, and then that he is no more entitled to force his views upon the community generally than the community is entitled to force upon him views which it, or a large proportion of it, may hold. Further, just as he has rights, so too have other members of the community, and the liberty which should be afforded to the academic, like the liberty of the undergraduate, should be used in such a way as to impinge as little as possible upon the liberty of other people. I have no doubt that in what I have just said I have been preaching to the converted. The academics and administrators of this University have set a fine example of co-operation with the community generally. The University is physically very much a part of Adelaide, and some at least of its treasures can be enjoyed by the public as well as the members of the University. As an example I refer to the Henry Moore sculpture which gives me great pleasure and which is so placed that it can equally delight members of the public passing along North Terrace. But more particularly I refer to time given by the academics to projects of public importance ranging, to take but two examples, from the law in relation to consumer credit to the Dial-a-Bus system. By devoting their time, talents and energies unstintingly to many studies for community benefit the academics are joining fully in community life.

The second group of graduands to whom I would wish to address myself are those who have come to us from overseas and particularly from the South-East Asian countries, and who will now, or shortly, be returning to their own countries. I trust that we have made it clear to you during your sojourn in South Australia that our country has gained substantially from your presence among us, and from the opportunity to acquire through you some knowledge of the customs and culture of our neighbours. I hope that you, in your turn, have acquired, while in South Australia, more than a degree from this University. You have doubtless made many friends in this country. I trust that the speed of modern travel will enable you to keep in touch with us by further visits, and to receive visits from your Australian friends. The University is justly proud of its graduates in Asian countries, and honoured by the success of so many of them. I hope that as your home Universities increase in number, and in the variety of their disciplines, there will be frequent exchanges of professors, lecturers and students between them and the Australian Universities to our mutual benefit.

Finally there must be a number of graduands who have already embarked, or are about to embark, upon a chosen career, for which your degree is the whole or part of your pre-requisite qualifications. You may have been troubled from time to time by the dichotomy between the academic and the professional training for your chosen occupation. In any discipline in which students receive training for a profession there are inevitably to be found those who press for a training which is more academic and those who would opt for the purely pragmatic. In a University the necessity for practical training should not be allowed to whittle down the academic content of a course. For many of you your years at the University offer the only time during which you can find the opportunity to acquire interests of an academic rather than a severely practical nature. I hope that you have been able to do this, and that you will succeed, notwithstanding the pressure of the work upon which you have entered, in cultivating those interests. For a while you may feel that your employers or superiors are sending you back to the kindergarten in that the knowledge and skills which you have acquired at this University are not being fully used, and you are stagnating under the pressure of routine work. I believe that routine matters have to be learned even by graduates. When they have been learned is the time to show impatience if your knowledge and your talents are not being properly utilised.

In this era of Women's Liberation I cannot resist the temptation to make a few remarks relating particularly to the women graduands. I do so notwithstanding the fact that I would hope that the day is approaching when, there being no discrimination against women in any field in which they are qualified to act, any remarks especially addressed to them would be otiose. It is sometimes claimed that women graduates in the non professional courses find it difficult to obtain employment, and that upon application for employment in commerce or industry they are asked whether they can type, whereas such a question is not directed towards their male counterparts. From 1878 to April 1880 the Council of this University waged a wordy battle with the Colonial Secretary on the topic of admitting women to degrees, a battle which was finally won by the Council in the face of opposition from England, when the University of Adelaide Degrees Act of 1880 made it clear that women might be admitted to degrees. I would hope that in a State which has recognised for well over 90 years the justice of affording to women opportunities of academic study and achievement which equal those of men, employers of today would not be loathe to grant similar recognition to the principle of equality of opportunity for men and women in employment, and that the sex of an applicant would no longer be regarded as relevant to an appointment to any position.

To all of you upon whom degrees have today been conferred I extend my congratulations and my good wishes for your success in your chosen careers.

At the morning ceremony on 3rd May the Registrar, Mr. V. A. Edgeloe, addressed the congregation as follows:

Mr. Chancellor, Mr. Vice-Chancellor, members of the Council and Senate, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The general theme of this address derives from the expectation that that distinguished son of the University, His Excellency the Governor, would be present. Unfortunately, as the Chancellor has told you, he is unable to be here this morning but expects to attend this afternoon's ceremony. I have been unable, in the time available to me, to revise appropriately the text of what I had prepared, and I must simply rely upon your indulgence for that defect and ask you to assume his presence.

Forty-nine years ago today His Excellency was studying the final year's work for the Honours degree of Bachelor of Science, which he completed at the end of the year with first class Honours. The University then, in 1923, was very different in many respects, though not in what I believe to be the essential nature and functions of a University, from what it is today. I ask you to bear with me if I look back and elaborate a little on what the University was and did in 1923 and remark upon a few of the differences and likenesses between then and today.

First, the physical accommodation. The buildings then comprised the Mitchell Building (as it is known today), the Prince of Wales Building, the Elder Conservatorium of Music, the old Anatomy Building, the Darling Building, a small timber building raised during World War I for use as a chemistry laboratory, and a small stone building that was the home of the somnolent Union and the active Sports Association. The total floor area was about 125,000 square feet. The foundations were about to be laid for the main physics building, the gift of the State Government to the University on the occasion of its Jubilee celebrations in 1926. The Waite Institute was only on the eve of its coming into being. The Anatomy Building was demolished less than three years ago to make way for the great complex, three floors of which are underground, immediately north of the Prince of Wales Building and the Elder Conservatorium. The jarrah building served its original purpose for 15 years and then, known as "The Hut", served for some 20 years as the home of the University Theatre Guild and the Department of Physical Education. The small stone building subsequently served for nearly 40 years as the W.E.A. (now Union) bookshop.

The Mitchell Building, now severely overtaxed by the Administration alone, then housed the small administration, the Barr Smith Library, the Faculty of Law and its library, and the Departments of Classics, Philosophy, History, Mathematics and Physics. The Prince of Wales Building accommodated English, French, Botany, Chemistry, Geology and Engineering; the Darling Building provided for Biochemistry, Physiology, Histology, Pathology, Zoology and the medical library.

Today the total gross floor area at North Terrace, including the Union buildings, is a little less than one-and-a-half million square feet, to which should be added about 160,000 square feet for the Waite Institute and 27,000 square feet for Physical Education at Mackinnon Parade. Many of the Departments that require laboratories, then so small and crowded together, now occupy spacious buildings of their own. The little flèche on the Elder Hall no longer dominates the University site; if you walk through the University grounds you cannot fail to see that the University buildings have gone both underground and skywards.

Next, the students. In 1923, the year in which Sir Mark graduated, the student enrolment totalled 1459. Of that total 794 were proceeding to degrees of Bachelor, 49 were postgraduate students not further defined, 268 were enrolled in the course for the diploma in commerce, and 64 for the diploma in music. The remaining 284 were not enrolled for any degree or diploma. But the bare figures are misleading. Compared with what we keep today, let alone what we ought to keep, the student statistics kept then were, let me say, meagre. A generous estimate is that not more than 400, or about 25%, were full-time students. Today the total enrolment is about 8570, of whom 5840, or nearly 70%, are full-time; the number of students proceeding to sub-graduate diplomas is negligible; and there are more students proceeding to degrees of Master and Doctor, about 940, than were proceeding to degrees of Bachelor in 1923.

One Commemoration ceremony sufficed in 1923. It was held in December, in the Elder Hall. At it 83 degrees, including 14 degrees of Master or Doctor, were conferred and 41 diplomas granted. This year there are four ceremonies, at which 1435 degrees are being conferred and the granting of 211 diplomas, nearly all postgraduate, recorded. To make the ceremonies of half a century ago of respectable length an academic address was given after the degrees had been conferred. The address in 1923 was given by Professor Wood Jones, the Elder Professor of Anatomy, on the place of anatomy in the modern medical curriculum, a topic which may suggest to some of us that in some respects the subjects of deliberation in the Faculty of Medicine are slow to change.

Thirdly, Staff. An examination of the salaries and wages records of 1923 reveals that there were 16 professors and 22 other members of the full-time academic staff. Most of the teaching in the professional faculties—commerce, dentistry, law and medicine—and a significant part of the teaching in the other faculties, was done by part-time staff. All the teachers in the Elder Conservatorium, except the Director (who was then, as today, also the Elder Professor of Music), were engaged on the basis that they received the fees of their pupils less 12½% for the facilities and service that the University provided. Today there are 72 professorships and 533 other full-time academic posts on the establishment, and considerably more than the total cost of the University in 1923 is spent on part-time staff. In this context I should like, if I may digress for a moment, to draw your attention to one unchanging feature of the University; it is the dominating place that staff occupies in the University's cost structure. In 1923 salaries and wages—payments to people—represented about 75% of the University's recurrent expenditure; the percentage today is very little different. And the proportion—about two-thirds—of the salaries and wages bill represented by academic staff, both full-time and part-time, is essentially the same today as it was fifty years ago.

Nature and Function. So much, with an exception that I shall mention later, for the differences. I turn now to the enduring sameness—the nature of a University and its functions. We have all heard, time and again, that the raison d'être of a University is the conservation, advancement and dissemination of knowledge. Less often we have been reminded of a third function: public service in the education and training of members of the professions essential to the maintenance of society as it has evolved over the centuries. The medieval universities were concerned with studies in theology, law and philosophy, including political philosophy; and the majority of those who rose to eminence in literature, government or public service had in fact had the benefit of a university education and intellectual, though not specifically professional, training. The specifically professional training came later. At the formal inauguration of the University on 25 April, 1876, the Governor, Sir Anthony Musgrave, spoke of the need to cultivate the things of the mind and to study science “for its own sake, not for utility”. And on that ethereal note the University began. But its functions soon embraced the utilitarian. Within ten years it had entered upon the teaching of Law (in 1884) and Medicine (1885); and while growth in the arts and sciences was slow, only Music being added, expansion in the professional fields proceeded steadily with provision being made for Engineering (by arrangement with the School of Mines, now the Institute of Technology), Commerce (Adelaide was the first Australian university to make such provision), Agriculture, Forestry and Dentistry.

How does the University of today compare with the University in which His Excellency graduated? The answer for the service function is simple. There were then, as there are now, graduates in Arts, Science, Engineering, Law, Medicine, Music and Dentistry. There were then also the counterparts of this year's graduates in Architecture (but they were graduates in Architectural Engineering), in Economics (but they obtained a diploma in Commerce), and in Agricultural Science (the degree was Bachelor of Science; the course for it included a certain amount of study in Agriculture). But the nature, range and substance of studies covered by those names are today vastly different from those of the 1920's.

The teaching fifty years ago was done almost wholly by lectures and by laboratory, exercise and essay work. Tutorials were unheard of. Full-time teachers were few, and they undertook, I think, a teaching programme much more extensive on paper than do their counterparts today. Professors were expected to participate in the teaching of both the elementary and the advanced courses in their subjects, and with very few exceptions they did so. It was not uncommon for a professor or lecturer to give half-a-dozen lectures, or more, a week throughout the academic year. But since some professors and lecturers were alleged to repeat the same lectures year after year—something that I hesitate to suggest might obtain today—such a programme may not have been so heavy as it would superficially appear to be.

The average student had in large measure to rely upon himself and his abler fellows when he got into difficulties. In Arts subjects, at least, there was always a part of the course on which no lectures were given and which the student had with the help of a reading list or prescribed text to get up for himself. It did not, I think, occur to him that he might consult his professor or lecturer (there being no tutor) whenever he felt the urge or need to do so.

Today, after a campaign extending over decades, the lecture has become less important and in some departments attendance at lectures is no longer obligatory. The emphasis has transferred to tutorial discussions in small groups and to the personal association of tutor and student. Annual examinations on a year's work are becoming less important, being replaced in substantial measure either by assessment of written work throughout the year or by a series of smaller examinations, or by a combination of both. And, one may add in passing, members of the academic staff are beginning to appreciate the intricacies, complications and problems that the transition involves.

So much for the dissemination of knowledge. What about its conservation and advancement? An examination of the bibliography that formed part of the annual report for 1970 indicates that during that year 208 members of the academic staff (about 35%) published just over 400 scientific and scholarly articles ranging from book-review-articles to full-scale books, an average of about two items for each publishing staff-member. The bibliography for 1923 recorded 63 such publications by 18 of the 38 staff-members (nearly 50%), an average of about three-and-a-half items for each publishing staff-member. Two professors—Sir Archibald Strong and Coleman Phillipson—published large-scale books; one—Wood Jones—a monograph of 131 pages and seven articles; and eight other professors and seven lecturers published from one to eight articles each. Clearly the academics of half a century ago were at least as active in scholarship and research as are their counterparts today.

And here I should mention something that reflects distinction on the University in every country in which the advancement and dissemination of knowledge are held in high esteem. It is The Australian Journal of Experimental Biology and Medical Science, published by the University continuously since 1924. But it was in 1923 that the conception of the journal was brought to the point of birth, arrangements for its publication were made, and the articles for the first number were written. If the University has a jewelled crown the Journal is one of its brightest jewels.

There is, however, one important difference between the 1920's and the 1970's. The University is not now the generally cohesive and mutually considerate and tolerant community that it is often supposed to be and once was. The change lies in what I will call, for want of a better term, the administrative and political philosophy and atmosphere of the University. There was then, in the university as in the general community, a greater respect for (but not necessarily subservience to) the accumulation of knowledge and understanding that derives from the thought and experience of those who have preceded us. There was less propensity for the individual to regard himself as the sole and infallible fount of integrity, wisdom, truth and justice. Within the University there was a greater acceptance of the decisions of those who carried the responsibility for making them in the interests of the University as a whole. The general attitude was that one should argue his case for judgment by disinterested but comprehending others and then accept the decision, no doubt with disappointment when the decision was adverse. But accept it, and proceed from there.

Today, it seems to me, the prevailing attitude (again in the university as in the community beyond it) is that all decisions should be made only by those directly involved, that the interests of the individual or group directly concerned should be paramount, and that disinterested judgment by competent assessors should be eschewed. And if as one involved you still don't get your way, be as difficult about it as you can. One result is the expenditure by academics of thousands of man-hours in committee work, time which might, perhaps, be spent more profitably in teaching, research, or advancing scholarship. Only time will tell, I suppose, which is the better way for the university to manage its affairs, for not always does the participating player see the over-all strategy of the game.

And now may I offer congratulations to those of you about to be admitted to degrees on your having satisfactorily completed what in terms of the medieval crafts would be regarded as your apprenticeship in your chosen field of study. You have had to work harder and to master more difficult and more intricate concepts than your counterparts of His Excellency's day had to do. But what you have done is still, as then, only the apprenticeship. There remains the journey-manship before you become a master, and to continue to be a master in these days of rapid change and growth of knowledge will require continuing participation in the learning process.

I asked earlier that you bear with me while I looked back. Of the 83 graduates in December 1923 eight subsequently received knight-hoods for their professional distinction and public service: two engineers, three scientists and three surgeons. Three became professors, two in this University, and the other in Birmingham and A.N.U., and five others members of the academic staff of the University. Three were elected to the Council and served the University with energy and distinction in that capacity. Five became part-time teachers in the University. The names of many others are readily recognised by one of my age as those of men and women who reached high office, responsibility and reputation in their chosen professions.

The list of graduates in 1972 will, I think, make interesting reading 49 years hence, in the year 2021. Is it too much to hope that some of you will by then have made contributions to knowledge, to professional excellence and to service of your fellow man comparable with those made by many of the graduates of 1923?

I have looked back. It is for you to look forward, and the University wishes you well in what lies before you.

At the afternoon ceremony on 3rd May the Chancellor, The Honourable Dr. J. J. Bray, addressed the congregation as follows:

Your Excellency, Lady Oliphant, Mr. Vice-Chancellor, Members of the Council and Senate of the University of Adelaide, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen.

My first duty, and a very pleasing one, is to welcome Your Excellency and Lady Oliphant on your first official visit to one of our Commemoration ceremonies. Many governors of the State have sat in the Visitor's seat of the University of Adelaide on this occasion, but this is the first time that it has been occupied by one of the University's own sons. In you we welcome Her Majesty's representative and we welcome, too, one of our most distinguished graduates, and we welcome Lady Oliphant as your wife in both capacities and in her own right as well.

It is not for me to expatiate upon Your Excellency's academic distinction. It has been given to Your Excellency, as I think it has been given to few men, to have run the whole gamut of academic life as undergraduate and graduate here, as professor and administrator elsewhere, and now as official Visitor to your original university. No one is quite sure what the powers, privileges and responsibilities of an official Visitor are: but at least they must include the act of visitation and I can assure you that whenever you and Lady Oliphant see fit to visit the University you will be welcome, not only with sincerity, but with pride as well.

It is customary for the Chancellor on these occasions to do three things: firstly, to make some reference to important events in the life of the University over the past year; secondly, to address some words of congratulation or exhortation to the new graduates; and thirdly, to utter some remarks of greater or less profundity on some general topic.

In obedience to tradition I propose to do all these three things, but not in that order. I do not want to repeat what has already been said from this place by those who have presided over earlier Commemorations this year. The Deputy Chancellor has made reference to the lamented death of Dr. Hambly, who played so large a part in so many activities of this University and whom I remember so vividly sitting on this dais last year as Deputy Chancellor and Dean of the Faculty of Arts. It is fitting, however, that I as Chancellor should once again, and in the most formal manner possible, express the gratitude of the University for his many services, the affection and respect in which he was universally held, our sorrow at his untimely death and our sympathy for his widow and his family. I record also with the like gratitude for past services to this University and with the like sorrow and sympathy the death during the year of the late Mr. J. A. Dunning, who was for many years Headmaster of Prince Alfred College and a member of the Council of this University from 1960 to 1971, and the death of Mr. P. J. Britton, Lecturer in Music for 4 years.

As usual there have been resignations and retirements during the past year. I record with gratitude for their past services to the University, regret at their departure and congratulations and best wishes for them in their new careers, the following resignations:

the resignation of Professor R. F. Whelan, Professor of Human Physiology and Pharmacology, on appointment as Vice-Chancellor of the University of Western Australia; the resignation of Dr. T. C. R. White, Senior Lecturer in Zoology, on appointment to a Chair in the University of the South Pacific;

the resignation of Professor F. B. Bull, Professor of Civil Engineering since 1952 and for many years a valued member of the Council, on appointment as Deputy Chairman of the Australian Universities Commission; the resignation of Professor J. J. C. Smart, Hughes Professor of Philosophy since 1950, to accept appointment as a Reader in La Trobe University; the resignation of Professor J. L. Woodward, Professor of Electrical Engineering since 1966, on appointment as Professor of Electrical and Mechanical Engineering at the Papua and New Guinea Institute of Technology; the impending resignation of Professor D. P. O'Connell on appointment as Chichele Professor of Law in the University of Oxford. Professor O'Connell was appointed Reader in Law in 1953 and to a Personal Chair in International Law in 1962.

I further record with gratitude for their past services and best wishes for their years in retirement of:

Professor M. F. Glaessner, a member of the academic staff from 1950 to 1971;

Miss C. M. Eardley, Senior Lecturer in Botany, who has been a member of the University staff since 1933, and I am pleased to announce that the reserve at Quondong has been named "The Constance Eardley Reserve" in her honour;

Miss L. M. Angel, Senior Demonstrator in Zoology, who has been a member of the University staff in various capacities since 1932;

Mr. J. F. Conroy after 46 years of service, the last 36 of them as Maintenance Superintendent of the University premises.

We have, of course, had arrivals as well as departures. I will not list them, but I welcome them all; and I hope that their service to the University will be rewarding to them as well as to us.

I have on previous occasions spoken about what I think the purposes of university education to be. Today I want to say something about one particular matter related to tertiary education and, indeed, to education generally. That is the question of relevance, the claim so often made in so many different contexts that everything taught in the curriculum should be relevant to something, not always very clearly stated and sometimes not stated at all. In an ultimate philosophical sense, of course, it may be that everything is relevant to everything else, but that is not, I agree, a sufficient justification for the academic study of any particular item in any particular course. When the complaint is made that something is not relevant, what is really meant, I think, is that the complainant cannot trace its connection with the immediate contemporary situation in Adelaide in 1972.

There are several answers to this complaint. The first is that it misconceives one of the essential functions of the University, that is to increase the stock of human knowledge. All additions to that stock are valuable. All, I firmly repeat, even the establishment of the regnal years of Hittite kings, the resolution of a disputed reading in a manuscript of Silius Italicus, the life cycle of a parasite peculiar to the Sumatran rhinoceros, or the distance in light years of the most insignificant star in the most obscure of constellations. All knowledge is valuable in itself. That is the faith by which universities live. Besides, it is impossible to say now what use may be made in the future of any piece of knowledge.

That is not an argument, perhaps, which is likely to have a wide appeal. Another answer is that the effect cannot be known without the cause. If you would understand why things are as they are, you have to find out how they became as they are. You cannot understand the modern world without knowing something of its history, and not merely its immediate history, either. You cannot truly understand the language you speak without knowing something of its past. You cannot use intelligibly the Greek and Latin compounds and neologisms which are proliferating like fruit flies, and with a somewhat similar effect on the language, unless you know their meaning in their original forms. You certainly cannot understand the law of the present if you know nothing of the law of the past, or the political system of the present if you know nothing of the political system of the past.

Confining my examples to the field of law and to those parts of the law which attract most popular interest, I give some illustrations. If I am asked, as I sometimes am, why should suicide, homosexuality or abortion be crimes, or why should the divorce law exist in its present state and fault have to be proved in most cases, I can give answers, historical answers, which would involve an exploration, amongst other things, of the sexual code of the Old Testament, the legislation of Justinian, the system of canon law in the Middle Ages and the matrimonial misadventures of Henry VIII. These answers, I have observed, often fail to satisfy the enquirers. If so, it turns out they have been asking the wrong questions. They do not really want to know why the law is as it is, what they want to know is why it should remain as it is. That question is fundamentally in the last analysis an ethical question, and it can only be fruitfully discussed if there is in the last resort some common philosophical basis between the questioner and the answerer. To find that out it might be necessary to have recourse to the works of Plato, Aquinas, Bentham, John Stuart Mill, Noah Chomsky and perhaps those of Germaine Greer and Allen Ginsberg as well.

So, too, great literature speaks to the human condition and since all men are still, as they always have been, subject to the accidents of birth, death, age, sickness, love, hate, envy, frustration, disappointment, and wrong, what it has to say on such topics can never be irrelevant.

But perhaps the real answer is that the relevance of A to B is not always apparent. The egg is relevant to the chicken, but the chicken might not think so and if he enrolled for a course of comparative ornithology he might say, "What's all this stuff about eggs. I want to know about fowlyards and bran mash." It is not to be expected that the relevance of everything proposed to be studied in the course of the learning process should be self-evident at the beginning of that process. Something has to be taken on trust.

I may have spoken somewhat frivolously but I do not regard the topic frivolously. On the contrary, I regard with alarm what seems to me to be the increasing tendency to concentrate the energies of academic life to an excessive degree on the immediate concrete problems of the day. I do not deny the reality of those problems or their urgency: but they are, I suggest, more efficiently coped with by the knowledgeable than by the ignorant. It would seem to me deplorable if men and women at that time of their lives when they are freed from the tutelage of the schoolroom and not yet subjected to the full pressures of economic necessity and when their intellectual powers should be awakened and their intellectual appetites omnivorous, were not to emancipate their imaginations, to speculate at large, to ransack the resources of the past and to endeavour to acquire the perspective and the balance that only a humane education, in the old sense of the word, can give. This is not to advocate dwelling in an ivory tower: it is to advocate using the ivory tower as an armoury to supply defensive weapons, and perhaps offensive weapons too, for life amongst the glass and concrete cubes.

Finally, I should apply myself to the last of my three tasks. I congratulate everyone who is going to receive a degree today, either in person or in absentia. I hope that you have found undergraduate life stimulating, instructive and enjoyable. I hope that you will find life as graduates rewarding and successful. I have been urging that society in general, and the academic world in particular, should not cut the lifeline with the past and that is not to advocate living in the past. So I would urge you not to sever communications with the University, though that does not mean that I advocate your returning to undergraduate status. I wish you all happiness, prosperity and good fortune and I hope that you will reap the value of your sojourn here, not only by the effective application of your professional training in your respective careers, but also by your general influence and activity in the community as educated men and women.

W. MEIKLEJOHN, Bursar.

We report that we have duly audited the various Books of Account and other records relating to the Income and Expenditure of The University of Adelaide, in respect of the year which ended on the 31st day of December, 1971, and do certify the above statement to be a correct abstract of such Income and Expenditure during the period named.

We further certify that in terms of sections 3 and 7 of the States Grants (Universities) Act, 1969-1971 in relation to the year 1971, the above financial statement correctly sets out the Fees and State Grants received by The University of Adelaide, that the Commonwealth Grant for recurrent purposes paid to the University in that year has been applied for expenditure (not being capital expenditure as defined in the Act) on University purposes and that the grant of $300,000 (of which the Commonwealth and the State each contributed $150,000) has been applied for expenditure on special research purposes.

THE SENATE

Until 29 April, 1971 the Senate of the University consisted of all graduates admitted to a degree of Master or Doctor and of all other graduates of the University of three years' standing. A graduate of another University admitted to a degree in The University of Adelaide reckoned his standing from the date of his graduation in such other University.

On 29 April, 1971 a new act, "The University of Adelaide Act, 1971" came into force. Under it, the Senate consists of all graduates of the University; all persons in the full-time employment of the University who are graduates of other Universities recognised by the University or who have attained at other institutions of higher learning qualifications considered by the University to be of a status equivalent to that of a degree of the University; and all postgraduate students.
