PUKAPUKA

W.W. Gill to L.M.S., 21 Mar. 1863 -- 140 people taken away by Peruvian slavers

W.W. Gill, 18 Aug. 1871 -- in 1862 the population was about 600, but now it is only 340, owing partly to incursions of slave~~t~~ships

Norah,

Many thanks, I have noted these on my cards - did you get them from Norma's paper, or have you a secret cache?

In my criticism of McMahon I was not intending to suggest that the slavers did not take labour from Pukapuka, but that they did not raid the island for labour, as e.g. they did on Easter Island and also Nukulaelae.

Any other references to the Peruvian labour trade will always be welcome.

British Parliamentary Papers relating to the South Sea
Islands ; kidnapping of labour, etc.

The Commonwealth National Library has holdings of British Parliamentary Papers after about 1850, I believe. The A. N. U. Library does not have any Parliamentary Papers, but has some selected Command Papers. It also has the following book, which is a very useful guide to British Parliamentary Papers dealing with the Colonies, and thus to the Pacific area :

ADAM, M. I., EWING, J., and MUNRO, J., Guide to the Principal Parliamentary Papers relating to the Dominions, 1812 - 1911. (Edinburgh, Oliver and Boyd, 1913). A.N.U. Library catalogue no. 3RE ea
A 195

The following information about Papers relating to the kidnapping of Pacific Islands labour etc. was taken from the above book :

- P.55 1861 XL [2890], pp. 573-678.
Papers re affairs of Qd. From the creation of the colony, I Dec. 1859 to June 1861, Various repts by the Governor, Sir G.F.Bowen, with a sketch to illustrate his tour in Mar. 1860; meeting of 1st Parlt.; question of coolie labour, etc.

These followed the Riva of Carmen after her disastrous seven months voyage culminating in the terrific events on Sunday Island;
the last shipment from Easter Island on the Umeneta of Perro; the General Penn with her 174 Tuzos transferred from the Australian whaler Grecian; and finally in mid-August the Dolores Carolina, Poluena and Adelante returning from the northern atolls.
