

—The Route.—

There was an impression that the funeral procession would proceed through the heart of the city. Thousands of people congregated all along King William road and street from as far as St. Peter's Cathedral to Government House. However, the more direct route over the Morphett street bridge was taken. There was a long procession of vehicles, but hundreds of sorrowing persons walked. The foremost carriages as they left the residence were occupied thus, although subsequently some changes occurred.

First—Bishop Thomas, Archdeacon Bussell, Rev. G. H. Jose, and Rev. W. Jeffries.

Second—President of the Methodist Conference (Rev. George Hall), Rev. Henry Howard, Rev. Dr. Bevan, and Rev. W. H. Cann.

Third—Dr. J. C. Verco.

The hearse and two carriages of wreaths. Seventh—Chief Justice, Miss Gordon, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Rymill, and Mr. S. Blue.

Eighth—Messrs. A. and W. B. Blue, Donald Gordon, and H. L. Rymill and Sir John Downer.

Ninth—Messrs. C. N., and G. Campbell, Mr. F. Downer, and Rev. John Thorne.

Tenth—Col. and Mrs. Beach, Mrs. F. Beach, and Messrs. Herbert Beach and Stanley Skipper.

Eleventh—Miss Goyder and Messrs. F. W. Weston, G. C. Ligertwood (Private Secretary to the Chief Justice).

Twelfth—The household staff.

Thirteenth—Sir Henry and Lady Galway, Hon. G. J. Mulholland, and Capt. Hopwood.

Fourteenth—President of the Legislative Council (Sir Lancelot Stirling).

Fifteenth—Their Honors Sir John Gordon, Mr. Justice Murray, Mr. Justice Buchanan, and the Master of the Supreme Court (Mr. W. L. Stuart).

Sixteenth—Sir Edwin Smith, Sir Charles Goode, Sir Langdon Bonython, and Mr. Commissioner Russell.

Seventeenth—The Mayor of Adelaide (Mr. A. A. Simpson) and Ald. Isaacs.

Eighteenth—Vice-Chancellor of the University (Dr. Barlow), and professors of the Adelaide University.

—At West Terrace.—

Clustered around the entrance of the West Terrace Cemetery was an even larger assemblage of people than at North Adelaide. The family vault of the Chief Justice is on the north side of the main road. Around about it cypresses grow, and in close neighbourhood are the last resting places of many ministers of the Bible Christian Church, of which the Rev. James Way (father of Sir Samuel Way) was one of the founders in South Australia. In the vault the body of the honoured father, and those of the Chief Justice's mother and his sister Janet (who died in her youth), had already been given sepulture. The vault on the occasion of the present interment was lined with beautiful wreaths, and around it stood representatives of all the chief interests of the city—business, labour, law, and other professions, religious, philanthropic, political, educational, municipal, and social. The law Courts and the law offices were closed. Archbishop O'Reilly was present, and, in addition to those already mentioned, public bodies were represented by the Hon. H. Homburg (Attorney-General, who attended on behalf of the Government), Dean Young, Rev. A. E. Gifford (Chairman of the Congregational Union), Mr. T. Gepp, S.M. (of the Adelaide Police Bench), Hon. J. Lewis, M.L.C. (President of the Australian branch of the Royal Geographical Society), Mr. J. R. G. Adams (Secretary of the Public Library Board), Mr. H. A. Shierlaaw (representing Mr. C. J. Dashwood, K.C., the Crown Solicitor), and Mr. W. J. P. Giddings (Vice-President of the Royal British Nurses' Association and the District Trained Nursing Society). Forty members of the staff and students of the Adelaide University paid their last respects, and there also attended about 30 representatives of the South Australian Grand Lodge of Freemasons (of which the Chief Justice is the head) and of St. Alban's and other lodges of the order. The service was conducted by the Bishop of Adelaide, assisted by Archdeacon Bussell and the Rev. G. H. Jose. The last prayer was offered up by the Rev. Henry Howard, and the benediction pronounced by the Rev. George Hall.

—Floral Tributes.—

So many were the wreaths that the vault was literally covered with them. Immortelles prevailed. Apart from the immediate relatives, the Judges of the Supreme Court, and friends who sent flowers, the following offered tributes to the memory of the dead:—The retiring Governor-General and Lady Denman, His Excellency the Governor and Lady Galway, Lord Richard Nevill, Capt. Fletcher, the State Ministry, President of the Legislative Council, the Judges of the Supreme Court, the Commissioner of Insolvency, Judges' Associates of the Supreme Court, the Law Society, the Mayor of Adelaide, the Corporation of Adelaide, Unley City Council, Council and Staff of the University, women students of the University, University Sports Association, the President and Council School of Mines, President and Council of the Society of Arts, the Grand Lodge of Freemasons, Adelaide, Children's Hospital, the Council of the Mothers' Union, District Trained Nursing Society, Ministering Children's League, Home for Incurables, Royal British Nurses' Society, Young Men's Christian Association, Young Women's Christian Association, President and Committee of the Queen's Home, the Ladies' Committee of the Queen's Home, Committee of the Queen Adelaide Club, Officers of the State Children's Council, Associates of the Adelaide Golf Club, the Alliance Francaise, Girls' Friendly Society, Franklin Street West Boys' Club, the Wattle Day League, and the Victoria League.

—Methodist Testimony.—

There was a large congregation at Maughan Church on Sunday night when the Rev. W. H. Cann, an ex-President of the Methodist Conference, at the close of his sermon said that they had met under the shadow of a great cloud, as Lady Way, one of the best friends of the mission, had died. He had known the deceased for many years, in the house, in the church, and in philanthropic circles as an earnest, Christian lady. She was one of the kindest and most sympathetic women he had met. She would listen sympathetically to what any sad and burdened life had to say, and was always careful to speak an encouraging word. In the truest sense she had been a real helpmate to Sir Samuel. How she studied him during his long and severe illness! She watched and guarded him in every possible way. This meant a severe strain upon her. He had always found her to be the same womanly woman, never unduly elated because of position, but ever taking the keenest interest in everything that concerned the good of the people, especially the poor and unfortunate. What a useful woman she was! Think of the many institutions she took a real interest in. How she worked for the Children's Hospital, the Queen's Home, the Home for Incurables, and the Young Women's Association. She just loved to do as her Lord did. As the wife of the beloved Chief Justice she endeared herself to all by her tact and kindness. The whole State was very much poorer through her death. Then she took a deep interest in the Central Mission. A few months ago she was on the platform at the foundation stone laying ceremony in Franklin street. Again and again she had spoken to him about the work among the poor. Now she had gone to the higher service. The suddenness of her death reminded one of the words, "In such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh." They now turned to Sir Samuel, whom they all loved. They admired the way he was bearing up. Let them send to him their loving sympathy, with an assurance that they would remember him in their prayers. The whole congregation stood in silence, and then the minister offered prayer for His Honor and the members of the stricken family. For many years Sir Samuel's name has been on the Maughan Church members' roll.

At the Payneham Methodist Church on Sunday the Rev. George Hall (President of the Methodist Conference) made reference to the death of Lady Way. The congregation stood with bowed heads as an expression of sympathy with the Chief Justice.

—Widespread Sympathy.—

The Chief Justice has received cable messages of sympathy from Admiral Sir Day Bosanquet, Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge (formerly Commander-in-Chief of the Australian Station), Dr. George Parker, C.M.G., of the Rhodes Trust, and from his nephews (Capt. Way, R.A., Roorke, India; Dr. Archibald Campbell, Paunani, Fiji; and Mr. Way Campbell, London). He received a letter of sympathy from Sir Ronald Munro-Ferguson, and a telegram from His Excellency Sir Harry Barron, Governor of Western Australia.

AT REST.

THE FUNERAL OF THE LATE LADY WAY.

A REPRESENTATIVE GATHERING.

In the presence of a gathering of many hundreds of people the remains of Lady Way, wife of the Chief Justice (Sir Samuel Way, Bart.), were laid to rest in the family vault at the West-terrace Cemetery on Saturday. The representative character of the assembly bore eloquent tribute to the love and esteem with which her ladyship was regarded, and to the extent of the loss that her removal has occasioned. It spoke, too, in a way clearer than words could express of the deep and widespread sympathy with Sir Samuel, to whom the State owes so great a debt. Every phase of society was represented—viceregal, legislative, judicial, ecclesiastical, legal, educational, civic, and philanthropic.

The casket containing the remains, which rested at Montefiore in the midst of a profusion of beautiful flowers, each wreath the expression of a sympathetic thought, was inscribed—

Lady Katharine Gollan Way.

Born April 8, 1854.

Died May 14, 1914.

While the mourners were assembling a short service was held at Montefiore by the Rev. Dr. Bevan in the presence of the family mourners and household staff. The chief mourners were Sir Samuel Way, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rymill (son-in-law and daughter), Messrs. S. A. G., and W. B. Blue (sons), Miss Gordon (sister), Mr. D. Gordon (brother), Mrs. Allan Campbell (sister-in-law), Messrs. Colin, Neil, and Gordon Campbell (nephews), Mr. F. H. Weston, Mr. J. F. Downer, Mrs. S. Weston (niece), Colonel and Mrs. S. Beach, Mr. Herbert Beach, Mrs. Fred Beach, and Mrs. Frank Beach.

The procession left Montefiore for Christ Church in the following order:—First carriage—The Bishop of Adelaide (Dr. Nutter Thomas), Archdeacon Bussell, the Revs. G. H. Jose, M.A. (rector of Christ Church), and W. Jeffries. Second carriage—The Revs. George Hall (President of the Methodist Conference), H. Howard, W. H. Cann, and Dr. Bevan. Third carriage—Dr. J. C. Verco. Hearse and two carriages containing wreaths. Sixth carriage—The Chief Justice (Sir Samuel Way), Mrs. Campbell, Mr. Sinclair Blue, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Rymill, and Miss Gordon. Seventh carriage—Messrs. A. and W. B. Blue, Donald Gordon, and H. L. Rymill, and Sir John Downer, K.C. Eighth carriage—Messrs. Colin, Neil, and Gordon Campbell, F. Downer, and the Rev. John Thorne. Ninth carriage—Colonel and Mrs. Sydney Beach, Mr. Herbert Beach, Mrs. Frederick Beach, and Mr. Stanley Skipper. Tenth carriage—Messrs. F. H. Weston and G. C. Ligertwood (associate to the Chief Justice), Miss Goyder, and Mr. L. Yemm. Eleventh carriage—The household staff. Twelfth carriage—His Excellency Sir Henry Galway, Lady Galway, the Hon. G. J. Mulholland (private secretary to the Governor), and Captain Hopwood, A.D.C. Thirteenth carriage—The President of the Legislative Council (Sir Lancelot Stirling). Fourteenth carriage—The judges of the Supreme Court (their Honors Sir John Gordon, Mr. Justice Murray, Mr. Justice Buchanan, and the Master, Mr. W. L. Stuart). Fifteenth carriage—Sir E. T. Smith, Sir Charles Goode, Sir Langdon Bonython, and Mr. Commissioner Russell. Sixteenth carriage—The Mayor of Adelaide (Mr. A. A. Simpson). Seventeenth carriage—The Vice-Chancellor of the University (Dr. Barlow) and professors. The University, of which Sir Samuel is the Chancellor, was represented by an attendance of 40, comprising members of the Senate, Council, and staff. Behind them came
