

February 17, 1939

Dear Yates,

Many thanks for sending me your paper, which I have only so far glanced at, on The tests of significance based on fiducial distributions. I shall be especially interested to see what you say about the weighted mean.

In respect of publication, of course the Annals are open to you, but, for this particular discussion, it would probably be preferable for your paper to appear in the Cambridge Philosophical Society Proceedings. It would at least give that Society an opportunity of making an ex aequo honorabile, and if they had the opportunity I rather suspect that they might be willing to jump at it.

Yours sincerely,