

UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE
Department of Genetics

44, Storey's Way,
CAMBRIDGE.

21st August, 1952.

Dear Bancroft,

Thanks for your note of August 6th. I am sorry to say that I have no typescript or notes of the three lectures given at Ames last July, and indeed, in accepting Professor Cox's invitation to attend her conference, I made it clear that I could not supply any such permanent record, though I could undertake to speak at a good many of her sessions.

You will, I am sure, understand that I should be obliged to miss a great many opportunities of contributing to discussions of various sorts if I felt myself under any obligation to put my ideas in writing on each occasion. After all, is there not quite enough poor and ephemeral writing getting into print already?

May I congratulate you on the success of your Biostatistical Conference as a whole, of which I heard a good deal, and thank you for the kindness and hospitality with which I was myself treated.

Sincerely yours,