

September 12th, 1935

Dear Dr Behrens,

I wrote to you on February 20th last and enquired if you could spare any offprints of your statistical papers, which would be of great use to students here: in particular, of course, I have in mind the test whether two given samples belong to populations having the same mean but different standard deviations.

My letter was addressed to Konigsberg, and I feel it may never have reached you. I am glad to hear from Professor Mitscherlich that you are still in Germany.

Yours sincerely,