

8th. March 1947.

My dear Henry,

Thanks for your letter. I do not want you to send me the sketch map, but rather to hold the whole material in your hands so as to get it to Darlington with a minimum of delay when the photographs are completed.

On the other hand I do want you to pay me a visit here, perhaps in the vacation if that suits you better than term, as it is a long while since you have been here.

It is curious that Haldane should be so jealous. Perhaps he regards Race's candidature as a threat to Penrose's prospects, though I surely think there would be room in the Society for both if, as I hope, Penrose continues with his work in human genetics. So far it has been, I think, a little diffuse.

Many thanks for your kind remarks. You know I value your appreciation.

Yours sincerely,
