

4th. February 1916.

My dear Henry,

I have just received the enclosed from Yates and send it to you just in case you have something in mind which might lead to good work by amateur observers.

I think the Phenological Committee is most unenterprising, as with a methodical framework many people are well placed for carrying out methodical observations on times of first appearance, especially with plants. It may be they have heard of Williams' butterfly migration studies through other channels, but you may think that, or perhaps have in mind something better, suitable to suggest to them.

Yours sincerely,

Encl. Letter for Yates, re offer of S.E. Union of Sci. Socns. to undertake field observations.
