

November 13, 1941

Dear Henry,

Thanks for your letter and for sending me the note for the Entomologist. I should think it would serve its purpose well, and in any case I am glad that you have put your own remarkable observation on record, together with cognate information from the literature. The variations in sex ratio seem really remarkable. My pencil suggestion on p. 3 is only to make the successive sentences connect more easily.

Yours sincerely,