My dear Henry,

We were both very sorry to hear that you would be unable to come this week-end, and are glad to think that you should be able to manage it on the 12th.

I was glad to see the full record for Pieris napi, the earlier parts of which remain inexplicable, even though the later outcross with British stock has behaved intelligibly. Particularly I cannot understand why more has not been done with the light yellow females. I presume these are a distinctive colour, and that they do not occur in other broods containing yellow. As they occurred in two different broods, I think some of them should have been used for breeding.

Yours sincerely
