Dear Jackson,

I am glad that my letter to the Colonial Office has been useful, and especially that you will now be staying here for a little longer.

I hope you will keep in touch with Stevens and press him to make tests of significance on points which need a definite answer. It does seem important to find at what point real discrepancies exist between different modes of making the estimates. Certainly it will be a good step to use the whole nine months data in the same way in which the sort series has been used.

Yours sincerely,
