

13 July 1944

Dear Jeffreys,

I was not sorry to find myself excused from the journey on Thursday, though the two visits to town I have paid since the flying bombs were about were quite uneventful with no special inconvenience about travelling. I heard this morning that the lecture and dinner had been called off, so we have avoided making a fruitless engagement.

I hope, however, you will give me the pleasure of coming some time during the next Winter series.

Yours sincerely,