

3rd October, 1955.

My dear Oscar,

I have an acknowledgement from the Royal Society to say your manuscript has been received, but presumably owing to the holidays they may not yet have had it refereed. I have no doubt that they will be favourably impressed.

I have decided to call the new book "Statistical Methods and Scientific Inference". I believe the publishers are now moving, though they have shown a good deal of inertia, as authors always feel.

Sincerely yours,