

22nd October, 1954.

My dear Mahalanobis.

P. K. Bose came and spent an hour or two with me the other day and he reminded me strongly of his brother. Incidentally, he let me know that J. B. S. Waldane is now with you and is likely to be in Calcutta during the time of my visit.

I did not realize this, and perhaps it is worth saying at this stage that though I could meet him as a friendly colleague, I do not want to see very much of him, or, indeed, to be seen very much with him.

I believe, however, that you are expecting a number of others from the west.

Sincerely yours,
