

10th January, 1956.

My dear Riddell,

Thank you very much for your quick reply. Undoubtedly Kalmus is a tedious person and, of course, as an eye expert he can be ignored. The trouble is that he is a member of a well advertised department and will be taken seriously as an expert in human genetics. Of course anyone acquainted with J.B.S. Haldane knows that not all his geese are swans, but one would not have to go so far as South America to find people who thought he was the leading authority of this country.

I am very glad of your confirmation that normal people should read Ishihara Plate 6 as a '5'. Of course Nature is sold much more widely than the Annals, but I doubt if the local library would always have it bound, whereas the Annals may be said to exist as a permanent reference. I must look at your Nature reference. Have now done so, but it does not mention Ishihara 6.

Sincerely yours,

I hope you will succeed, with or without Wright, in getting some further charts published. More variety is certainly wanted.
