

26th September, 1955.

My dear Riddell,

Thanks for your note. I only looked in on the chance that you might be in Glasgow, without really expecting to catch you unless I was lucky.

I am exceedingly sorry that you have been out of sorts. I wonder if there is any possibility of your coming up for the Genetical Society meeting on November 19th? If it in any way eases the problem please consider putting up for the night with me in Cambridge, as the journey from Scotland is, I imagine, quite a deterrent.

Sincerely yours,
