

July 23, 1941

My dear Taylor,

I am enclosing/^{this}with ~~this~~ a letter of thanks to your wife, as I want you to see the letter I have just written to Landsborough Thomson, and which you will find attached. Probably neither you nor I made it clear to him that the compilations here were of any more direct use to the Transfusion Service than the scientific salvage, which I think most important to carry on, but which has no particular claim on the College authorities or the Medical Research Council.

Yours sincerely,

July 23, 1941

Dear Mrs Taylor,

I should like to express how very greatly I enjoyed the hospitality you gave me over the week-end. It is always a great pleasure to see George again and discuss with him some of the problems which we usually have on hand, and in which we are interested. I should like you to know how greatly I appreciate your kindness in putting me up.

I am having a set of those patent quick-drying paints that I mentioned sent direct to Mary. I hope they will arrive safely.

Yours sincerely,