

May 6, 1941

My dear Taylor,

I expect you have had a notice of the meeting of the Genetical Society at Rothamsted on June 19th. I believe I have omitted to let you know that I am this year putting your name forward for Committee, and, though the actual list of recommendations will not be available until Thursday next, I have every reason to think the suggestion will be acceptable.

I ought to have let you know this before, since it is an added reason for you and, if possible, any others of your group, to come over, if you find it at all possible, on June 19th. There will be only a short time given to paper reading, about an hour in the morning, the intention being to spend the afternoon seeing exhibits, and perhaps it would be worth while bringing over some of the blood group charts, or other analogous material, if you have any ready. There is plenty of space available for exhibits which will hang vertically on walls, which I think yours mostly do, though we are rather cramped for room in other ways. I hope to have some pups to show, and some mouse results. Notify Mather if you think it worth while to show anything, either with or without a formal demonstration.

Yours sincerely,