

February 16, 1938

Dear Mr McKenzie Taylor,

I shall be very glad if you will hunt me up at the Galton Laboratory and lunch with me some time about the end of this month. I heard a great deal about the waterlogging problem from various points of view in Lahore, and it interested me greatly. I have not been asked for a written opinion, though perhaps such a request may be intended later.

Yours sincerely,